

Ganga Valley Educational Trust

(a Non-Profit Registered with the Govt of Uttarakhand)

Ganga Valley Educational Trust runs a small school at Devidhar Village (near Dunda), District - Uttarkashi, Uttarakhand.

The school serves children mostly from underprivileged families. At present, 80 children are enrolled in classes Prep to VIII. Local youth have been trained as teachers.

Inspired from Sh. Jiddu Krishnamurthi's philosophy that learning must be a fun experience – the school reverberates with happiness – and is aptly called Happy By Nature.

Even without fancy facilities, the young minds go about their routine with joy. The school charges a very nominal fee and has survived on donations and charity for the last 15 years. Our only promotion happens through the word of mouth and the parents and children are our greatest ambassadors.

What Makes Us Who We Are?

We identify with the following as our mission

How Do We Operate?

We believe a gift of education is the most precious gift you can give a child. In these remote villages, good schools are rare. With this initiative, these children have just one opportunity to get a sound education.

We urge donors to consider doing a Vidya-Daan (a sustained contribution over a period of 3 years) and see the lives of children bloom. Alternatively, one-time contributions of any amount are also welcome. All donations qualify for exemption under Income Tax Act 80-G

People Behind the Project

The trustees are a group of passionate educationists from across India. The team includes people with rich experience in creating and managing schools and comprises of 2 Army veterans, a wealth planner, a corporate leader and 2 teachers / school administrators.
